School Injunction Refused by Court

An injuction preventing construction of a high school in Evansburg has been refused in Alberta Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice W. R. Sinclair last Wednesday ruled that eight residents of the County of Parkland who filed a statement of claim seeking to prevent the school going any farther did not show "substantial grounds for doubting the existence of the right of the County of Parkland and the Yellowhead School Division to proceed in the way they did," in arranging a tuition agreement.

The two bodies in 1969 proposed to form a regional high school division, but electors in both turned the idea down. The Yellowhead school division went ahead with plans for the school, signing the agreement with the school committee of Parkland.

The eight residents claimed in Supreme Court Chambers that the tuition agreement had been entered into without the proper authority, and that Parkland ratepayers had rejected it in a vote at an annual meeting.

Mr. Justice Sinclair, who noted that the school is only in the architectural drawing stages, said he felt the legislature never intended the ratepayers at such a meeting to be able to overturn a decision of that sort between educational bodies.

He noted that a section of the County Act which says ratepayers may meet, discuss, make resolutions and vote on school affairs does not appear in the School Act.

He said that, in directing some of its school children go to the new school, the County of Parkland appears to be in accord with the School Act, and that the choice rests with the school committee.

School officials have told parents that children who do not want to be sent to the Evansburg school will be able to attend Seba Beach School in Parkland.

The school centralization dispute in the area has been the cause of student walkouts in the Seba Beach school.

Officials have also said that the tuition agreement will stand.

Nick Urchyshyn Heads Recreation Board

At the last regular meeting of the Drayton Valley Recreation Board Mr. Nick Urchyshyn was named Chairman to replace retiring Joe Balen. Mr. Reg Samis was elected Vice-Chairman and Mrs. Verna Sprague appointed as Secretary.

Board recommendations to be presented to Town Council included: takeover of maintenance of West Valley Park by the town's work force; approval of a $2,000 grant to the Drayton Valley Ski Club; and the loan of town-owned instruments to the Drayton Valley Community Band.

The director reported that a problem had developed in respect to gate receipts for minor hockey. A total of $2,133.57 was reported as minor hockey receipts from which the town had received no gate percentage nor arena rental. In the past a charge of $1.00 has been paid by the hockey organization and figure skating club for each participant.

The board's recommendation to Town Council was that the Minor Hockey Association be charged $250.00 for rental during the 1970-71 season. The board also indicated its intention of re-negotiating Civic Centre rentals prior to next season.

Tenders for repairs to the roof of the swimming pool building were reviewed with the board recommending acceptance of the H.J. Clark Ltd. tender.

Hog Producers Discuss Marketing Boards

A well-attended meeting of hog producers was held recently in the Rosenthal Community Hall. The meeting was called by persons interested in the individual's right of choice in the future pork industry in Alberta, and also for discussion of a plebiscite on the future of the Alberta Hog Producers' Marketing Board.

After considerable discussion it was decided to form a local organization to gather information on marketing boards and then call a further meeting of all interested in the future of the industry. A director or delegate of A.H.P.M.B. will be requested to attend the meeting to answer questions and give information on the marketing outlook.

An executive was elected consisting of: George Martin, Carvel Chairman; William Albrecht, Stony Plain, Vice-Chairman; and Herb Buxton, Carvel, Secretary-Treasurer. A membership fee of $1.00 was decided on and anyone interested may obtain membership by contacting a member of the executive.

The next meeting will be held in the Elks Hall in Stony Plain with the date and time to be announced later. A decision will be made at this meeting on whether or not to call for a plebiscite.

Cadet League 30th Anniversary

The Air Cadet League of Canada was formed originally in 1941 for the purpose of building a pool of pre-trained airmen for the R.C.A.F. After the war's end the movement was re-organized to provide training in aviation and citizenship to Canadian boys in the high school age bracket.

Supported by the R.C.A.F. for training and supplies the league organizes and administers Air Cadet Squadrons across Canada with each province having its own seperate provincial committee. These committees made up of local businessmen, who are interested in supporting the youth of today, provide the necessary support and organization for the squadron in the province.

Each squadron in turn has a local sponsor and its own committee which provides support for the squadron where Air Force support is not available.

733 Squadron Drayton Valley was formed in April 1963 by F/L Morris McCullagh D.F.C. The squadron is supported by Branch #269 Royal Canadian Legion and Auxiliary.

Through its civilian committee, composed of several members of the Legion, the Legion has provided excellent support in raising funds, transporation requirements and publicity where the squadron has required it. The squadron has been active in the community and over the years has provided training for youth of the community.

On the retirement of Mr. McCullagh, who is now a member of the Provincial Committee, command of the squadron passed to W. G. Johanneson. Mr. Johanneson maintained an excellent organization for several years and only recently due to the pressure of his commitments to the community as a whole he was unable to carry on and has retired.

Command is now in the hands of F/L A. A. Osborne who is doing an able job. Mr. Osborne, a member of the Parkland County Police, is a well known figure in the community and should prove an excellent commanding officer for the squadron.

The squadron will be very active in the next month or so having planned the following:

April 17th - Tour of Nisku International airport and the Provincial Archives in Edmonton; April 25 - Service aircraft have been made available at Namao to give cadets a familiarization flight; and May 13 - Annual inspection - This will take place in the Civic Arena and the public is welcome to attend the parade from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Following this will be the annual Parent-Cadet Banquet to be held in the Legion Hall. During the banquet awards will be made and two cadets will be given graduation certificates having completed five years with the squadron.

CFRN TV will be running a short program on the history of the Air Cadet movement on Sunday April 18th at 5:30 p.m.

Concentrated Red Cells -- This is the component which remains after the plasma has been drawn off and is used to treat anemeia.

UNIFARM MEETING

Unifarm Local 54-19 regular meeting will be held on Wednesday, April 14th at 8:00 p.m. in the Council Chambers.

Guest speaker will be Dr. B. Morden, who will give a report on I.B.R. (Red Nose) and B.V.D. (Bovine Virus Diarrhea) and the advisability of vaccinating against these diseases.

All farmers are invited to attend.

Financial Incentive Program to Boost Industrial Development

A financial incentives program to boost industrial development in Alberta is now being implemented.

The Province's new Industrial Development Incentives Act came into force on March 31st, after receiving final passage in the Legislature and the assent of the Lieutenant-Governor.

This legislation provides for loans to be made to secondary manufacturing industries in the province, to assist them in establishing new facilities and in expanding, modernizing and diversifying existing operations. Loans of up to one-third of the capital cost of a particular project, or $500,000, whichever is the lesser amount, may be applied to buildings, machinery and equipment costs.

Intended in particular to enhance the industrial development of smaller centres, loans will be made only to firms locating in or adjacent to communities with populations of under 50,000. As well, projects eligible for financial assistance under federal government incentives programs will not qualify for loans under the new provincial legislation.

"Continued diversification of Alberta industry is essential," says Industry and Tourism Minister Ray Ratzlaff. "These incentives should do much to assure the expansion of manufacturing, which in turn will increase employment opportunities and enhance general economic stability."

Loans will be made from an Industrial Development Incentives Fund, administered by a five-man Alberta Industrial Incentives Board, whose membership will include the directors of the Industrial Development Branch and the Alberta Commercial Corporation, of the Department of Industry and Tourism. The legislation provides for a fund of up to $10 million, with $3 million allocated for this year.

The act also provides for the Board, with Cabinet approval, to forgive repayment of any loans in whole or in part.

Lower Averages at Edmonton Swine Sale

A $300 top price and lower averages in all breeds characterized the Swine Sale at the Canadian Western Stock Show Friday.

Two animals reached the $300 mark. One was the Grand Champion Yorkshire female entered by William Balay of Rochester and purchased by Donald Brooks of Rosthern, Saskatchewan. A Yorkshire boar shown by Neil Fulks of Waskatenau also brought $300 from O. Ellsworth of Bentley.

The Reserve Champion Yorkshire female also came from the William Balay farm and sold for $260 to Stan Spicer of Calgary.

Checking average prices, 103 Yorkshire females averaged $125 compared with $208 last spring, and 55 Yorkshire boars made a $159 average, down about $50 from a year earlier.

OUR MIGRANT WATERFOWL

Every spring and fall Albertans are reminded of the great mystery of migration -- as thousands upon thousands of waterfowl gracefully fill our skies. To some Albertans, they represent exciting sport. To all of us, they provide a majestic spectacle.

Because our waterfowl seem so numerous, many of us have the attitude that they will be with us always. But that is not true of any species, as we have learned the hard way with the Buffalo, the Whooping Crane, and many others. Like all of nature's creatures, our waterfowl must receive a measure of protection if they are to survive the changes in their environment caused by man.

"WILD WINGS"
To help us better understand and appreciate the natural phenomenon of our migrant waterfowl, your gas company has produced a half hour television color documentary. In this program of the series, THE WORLD AROUND US, we follow these "Wild Wings" across the plains and parklands of Alberta, north to the Arctic breeding grounds.

Film shots in super-slow motion artfully depict the majesty and grace of the royalty among waterfowl, the Canada Goose, and the colorful spectacle of clouds of mallards in brilliant fall plumage. Filmed and narrated by WILDLIFE PHOTOGRAPHER AND LECTURER, EDGAR T. JONES, this program provides some of the most revealing footage of migratory waterfowl ever filmed.

Efforts Being Made to Attract Industry to Small Communities

The dozens of small and medium-sized industries that have sprung up recently in towns and villages throughout Alberta have had a stabilizing effect on these communities, and have contributed to the overall growth of the province.

The Alberta government, through the department of industry and tourism and the department of agriculture, has played a significant role in helping existing industries to expand and new industries to get started in a large number of rural communities.

An act, known as the Industrial Development Incentives Act, has just been passed by the Alberta Legislature. Initiated by the Industrial development branch of the department of industry and tourism, this act is intended to help communities with a population of 40,000 or less to attract appropriate industries to their areas.

Under the act, forgivable loans will be made available to small communities throughout the province. A total of $10,000,000. has been allocated to the fund. The money can be used to construct buildings, purchase equipment, and for related items. Indirectly, it can also be used to offset market transportation problems. Hence, these forgivable loans, which can be written off in five years, are basically designed to help a small community compete on a more equal footing with larger centers.

Within the last year the industrial development branch has set up five regional offices in Alberta. The idea is to have trained personnel who can make an on-the-spot evaluation of the advantages and disadvantages of a specific area as a possible site for a new plant or firm. Their job also entails informing people in the smaller communities about existing industrial opportunities and encouraging them to take an active part in trying to attract new industries.

The regional industrial development staff work with industrial development committees, made up of members of the community, on such things as locating capital and collecting marketing data.

If the proposed product can be used in Western Canada, the industrial development branch often contacts the purchasing departments of retail stores to help get the product on the market. If it could compete with similar products on the export market, the branch will ask its offices in such countries as the United States, Japan and England to explore marketing opportunities in those countries and to arrange contracts between prospective buyers and the producer. The industrial development branch also works closely with the federal department of trade and commerce regarding foreign markets as well as with the provincial department of agriculture.

The department of agriculture's marketing commissioner has travelled extensively during the past year in both Asia and Europe He has been promoting agricultural products in a large number of countries and exploring marketing opportunities. Before commodities like alfalfa, honey, vegetables, rapeseed, beef and many others can be processed here in Alberta, they must have an assured and dependable market. The marketing commissioner's efforts have resulted in a wide range of agricultural products starting to find their way into foreign countries, particularly in Asia. The capture of foreign markets for Alberta manufactured and processed goods can have a very beneficial effect on some of our smaller communities in terms of employment and economic prosperity for the area.

The department of agriculture also assists the industrial development branch in determining the suitability of specific areas for establishing plants to manufacture such things as special meat products, dairy products, rapeseed oil, processed potatoes, and so on.

Post-secondary education is another area in which the agricultural department helps industry. Its three colleges at Olds. Vermilion and Fairview provide industry with highly skilled agribusiness graduates each year. They are well equipped to fill responsible positions in a variety of industrial fields.

It has been shown that the establishment of a new industry in a small community can have a tremendous impact on the whole region. A new plant employing 100 workers, for example, brings about 360 more people, including approximately 90 school children, to the community. Total personal income for the community goes up by $710,000 a year and bank deposits increase by about $229,000. In addition, on the average, there are 97 more cars registered in the town or village, three more retail businesses become extablished, 65 more people are employed in non-manufacturing services, and $331,000 more retail sales are recorded a year.

Following are a few examples of industries which, as a result of imagination, initiative and hard work on the part of local citizens have become valuable assets to the communities in which they were established.

Early in 1970 a trailer manufacturing plant started up in the Peace River country to take advantage of the ever-expanding recreation market. The firm leased a former grocery wholesale warehouse to manufacture its fibreglass trailers which are specially designed for towing behind a small car. Its staff of 15 to 20 people means an annual payroll of $100,000 being channelled into the community's economy. Gross sales last year ran to half a million dollars.

Thousands of fishing lures are manufactured in a central Alberta town which has an abundance of soft water and suitable production space. This firm, with its staff of five, contributes a payroll of more than $25,000 a year to the community.

A company in a southern Alberta town manufactures a variety of trailers for industrial, agricultural and commercial use. Established in 1968, it has found a ready market for its products in Western Canada and has now broken into the highly competitive Ontario market. At present, it contributes an annual payroll of $30,000 to the area..

The new Industrial Development Incentives Act should go a long way towards reviving and expanding rural communities in this province which are either dying or have been stagnant for many years. A vital community means a stable community and an economically progressive area surrounding that community.

The National Safety Council has established that the death rate in agriculture ranks third highest when compared with other industries. Only the construction industry and the mining industry exceed the agricultural industry in deaths per 100,000 workers, and the agricultural industry is very close behind the construction industry.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

By Kevin Peterson and Don Sellar (Of the Calgary Herald)

When Albertans travel to the polls in this year's provincial election, they will choose their government from a record-sized slate of candidates competing for the 75 Legislature seats up for grabs.

So far, 123 candidates have entered what is billed as an election showdown between the 35-year-old Social Credit government and a resurgent Conservative Opposition.

It's virtually certain that three parties -- the Socreds, Tories and New Democrats -- will field full slates in the forthcoming campaign, while the small but increasingly vocal band of Liberals could run at least 45 candidates, for a total of 270.

The 1967 election -- E.C. Manning's last as Socred leader -- saw a record 236 men and women fighting for 65 House seats. Under redistribution, the Legislature will swell to 75 members next time.

An upswing in political interest and activity across the province this winter stems from an obvious situation. Premier Harry Strom's leadership is untested at the polls, while the Peter Lougheed-led Tories have scored two consecutive by-election victories and added two MLAs to their caucus by defection since 1967.

For Mr. Lougheed, the election represents the most important challenge to face his party and his leadership since its revival five years ago. There have been two previous threats to Socred supremacy, but both lost momentum when they failed to develop widespread support following impressive organizational starts.

It is generally conceded that Mr. Lougheed will have to carry 25 seats in the new House if the Tories wish to form a government in Alberta during this decade. A poorer performance than this would likely lead to waning interest in the party as a credible alternative to Social Credit.

With the expanded Legislature and an unprecedented number of Socred newcomers running for election, an Opposition party has never had a better opportunity to gain power.

At the moment, the Tories feel they are in acceptable shape in the cities of Edmonton and Calgary which elect 29 MLAs, but they face the traditional Opposition problem of wresting rural seats from the Socreds. If Mr. Lougheed can't gain support in the country, he can't become premier.

The Socreds, meanwhile, are trying to win back the cities, sell their new leader to the people and maintain their hold on rural Alberta constituencies.

Editorial Comment

Should Calley Stand Alone?

The life sentence meted out to First Lieutenant William Calley for the murder of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in a court marshall at Fort Benning, Georgia, has prompted a landslide of protests. Many, it appears, share the opinion that Calley is a scapegoat being sacrificed to spare others higher up the military totem pole.

Military operations start at the top and work down to troops in the field where they are carried out. Those at the top share the success, or failure -- and responsibility -- with the troops in the firing line. It seems a bit unusual that some of the top brass isn't sharing the fate of Calley, other accused field officers, and N.C.O.'s before the military court.

At the end of World War II the Allies established the principle of trying individuals for war crimes at Nuremberg and elsewhere. General Tomayuki Yamashita of the Imperial Japanese Army, as commander of his country's forces in the Philippines at the end of World War II, was convicted and hanged for atrocities committed by his troops, even though he had lost control of them. How did his position differ greatly from that of Gen. Westmoreland who commanded the U.S. Army in Viet Nam at the time of the My Lai incident?

Future Bleak?

The future of the small community is very uncertain if we listen to the skilled politician and experts on financing and forecasting of trends of population. The big city is to get bigger, small centres smaller and the country devoid of population.

Well, maybe they are right, but we feel that the small centres will continue to exist in spite of these forecasts. In fact, it is possible that some of the smaller places will grow -- not to the huge metropolitan size, but at least double and triple their present size.

Reasons for our beliefs in this line is that we do not believe the forecasts of the farm trends will even closely follow the pattern that is being laid down for them. They are based on pure economics, without taking into consideration the feeling and desires of the people involved.

Large farms we can see in some parts of Canada, but not in others. The very fact that a larger farm unit is harder to plan for and handle profitably, is one of our other reasons. It is possible but not probable that farmers will farm co-operatively and therefore we cannot see the great change forecast by the experts. Small farmers we have and small farmers we will continue to have and we might as well face up to this.

If it is becoming more of a problem economically for the small farmer to exist, we must do what we can to improve his lot. By this we do not mean subsidization as such. It is possible, we feel, to assist the small farmer to switch crops and get into more lucrative fields by creation of more marketing boards or co-operative marketing practices so that he can continue to be a farmer and be active in feeding the ever-growing population of the world.

Instead of planting grain and letting it grow on acres and acres of ground, a more intensive farming program could be carried out so that each acre would raise much more and therefore be worth more to the farmer with other crops.

The marketing of these more intensive crops might mean that the town dweller would have to assist the farming area in the matter of marketing. This could be done by formation of co-ops or other companies whose job it would be to see to packaging and handling, grading and storage, as well as the finding of markets and the cheapest way to get the produce to the consumer.

We feel that this would be a more likely approach to the ills of the farming world than the one proposed by the experts who would create a whole new profession -- the "former-farmer welfare specialist".

A bleak outlook isn't it? -- Sedgewick Community Press

EASTER

THE BLOSSOM'S REQUEST OF A BEE

O, kiss me good-morn, smiled the blossom
And give me a sniff, may as well
The wintef is gone and springtime has come
My aura will sweeten the dell!

Kiss me good-morn, beamed the blossom
The last bud is op'ed on the stem
Springtime is gone and summer has come
The bees will create a new gem.

Kiss me good-morn, grinned the blossom
The pods, hm! the pods, are all there
Summer is gone and autumn has come
Only the region looks sere.

Kiss me good-morn mused the blossom
Pleonasm, plethora, I am clever
Earth, water and sky, I hold my head high
Can it be I will then live 'Forever?'

Retort of the bee, To know, germane
A bee sees, apropos, much the same.

Composed by Fred E. Hunt, 1965.

Pleonasm - use of more words than necessary
Plethora - profusion
Germane - same parents, close akin
Apropos - fitly, relevant.

LINDALE NEWS

Several 4-H Clubs took part in curling at Warburg, on Saturday April 3rd. A delicious dinner of turkey, salads and other goodies was enjoyed by all.

Welcome home to Bert Flathers who has been holidaying in southern Alberta the past few weeks.

Mrs. Frank Belanger and Nancy Bijou are both home from Breton Hospital.

There will be a bingo at Lindale Hall on May 1st.

Mrs. Hazel Johnson, Mrs. Gwen Mayr, Mrs. Blanche Barnett, Mr. Bill Hankins and Mr. Gordon Holmgren are among those spending a few days of the Easter holiday at the coast.

Trees Help Conserve Environment Assets

Large areas of the agricultural zone of Alberta are either treeless or the trees have been indiscriminately removed. In the absence of tree cover, settlements, crops and livestock are all exposed to the extremes of the weather. These extremes include high winds, snow drifting, drought and soil erosion.

A well-planned windbreak reduces the wind velocity which, in turn, results in less moisture evaporation from the soil and less danger of soil erosion. The wind velocity on the protected side of a windbreak is reduced by a quarter of what it would be without the trees. This protected area extends up to 20 times the height of the trees.

A shelterbelt is often called a living snow fence because it traps the snow in the protected area, thereby increasing the moisture reserves in the soil. In addition, to beautifying the landscape, a well grown shelterbelt provides a natural habitat for many small animals and a variety of birds. In other words, it counteracts the effect that land clearing has had, and is having, on wildlife in this province.

The horticultural branch of the Alberta department of agriculture, among the first to recognize the importance of trees to the environment, has distributed well over 25,000,000 trees and shrubs to farmers throughout the province since it initiated its own production and distribution program in 1950.

Although this program has received very little publicity and fanfare during the last 20 years, it has been responsible for more than 50,000 Alberta farmers receiving free trees. They, in their turn, have helped to preserve the natural resources of our province by planting and maintaining these trees.

This year more than 4,200 farmers will receive in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 trees and shrubs for farm, field and roadside plantings. More coniferous trees are being distributed than usual because the provincial tree nursery at Oliver, which provides all the shelterbelt trees for the province, has a large supply of Colorado spruce and Scotch pine. Other varieties which will be planted this spring include 125,000 late lilacs, 110,000 honey suckles and 800,000 caragana. Caragana is considered the "main stay" of prairie shelterbelts.

All these trees and shrubs will be shipped to district agriculturist and municipal officers around the beginning of May. Farmers will be notified when to pick up their trees.

Although the distribution of young trees is a free service to the province's farming communities, everybody who receives these trees has a responsibility to see that they survive and grow. Young trees can stand very little abuse in the form of poor planting and maintenance practices. Good maintenance includes controlling the weeds in a shelterbelt or planting site for several years.

Herman Oosterhuis, in charge of the Alberta department of agriculture's tree planting program, wishes every prospective tree planter success in his contribution to the conservation and beautification of his natural environment.

"I understand you know a French word that brings an automatic 10-minute misconduct!"

Stanley Zanewicz left March 18th by air for Europe on a five week holiday. On April 4th he phoned home from Switzerland where he was skiing.

The Tomahawk Rockets are in the final play-offs. The first game was played on Wednesday night against the Drayton Valley Lions. The final score was 7 to 1. On Friday night they played the Rotary team and defeated them 6 to 1. The final game was on Saturday. The score on that game was 8 to 2 for Tomahawk.

The Tomahawk PeeWee Rockets have never been defeated this year in the house league games. They were tied once by the Drayton Valley Lions. Having a very good year they would like to thank most of all their first coach, Ben Harrison who has been with them from the first to the finish. And also Don Cherrington who helped Ben coach them this year, and Bill Dunbar who started as a helper but had to quit because his work took him away from home.

The Rockets have raised almost all the money they need for hockey jackets. So let's have a good hand for the Tomahawk Rockets who are: 1, Ron Dunbar; 2, Kim Lukaniuk; 3, Terrance Schadeck; 4, Dean Dunbar; 5, Dean Harrison; 6, Ricky Cherrington; 10, Brian Lukaniuk; 11, Laurie Strocher; 12, Randy Jabs; 15, Roger Reich; 16, Kees Lysak; and 17, Ronnie Reich.

The Tomahawk Library held a whist drive Friday night, March 27th with a pretty good turn out. Winner of the ladies' first prize was Mrs. Alex Namchuk. The men's prize went to Alex Namchuk who also took the men's travelling prize. Mrs. Weideman won the ladies' travelling prize. Mrs. Berryhill won the consolation prize and Reinhart Zutz the men's consolation prize.

The Tomahawk School held a table tennis tournament on April 3rd in the Tomahawk School. Tomahawk, Entwistle and St. Anthony's Schools were the only schools that came.

In the girls singles grade 5 and 6 winners were Claire Saulnier from St. Anthony's; Boys single (5&6) - Randy Jabs, Tomahawk; Girls double (5&6) Randy Jabs, Tomahawk; Girls doubles (5&6) Debbie Lanz and Diane Lysak, Tomahawk; Boys double (7&8) Wally Machuk and Reed Berryhill, Tomahawk; Boys doubles (5&6) Myles Homme and Ronald Zutz, Tomahawk; Girls doubles (7&8) Fern Van Hereweghe and Joyce Jacobs, St. Anthony's; Boys singles (7&8) Walter Case, Tomahawk; and Girls singles (7&8) Andrea Sztana, St. Anthony's.

We would like to thank the teams that came to play in the tournament, and would like to congratulate the winners.

SPRING HOME STORAGE

With spring in the air many housewives get the urge to give the house a "good going over." With the house getting a thorough cleaning, the opportunity to arrange storage is perfect. Whether you are reorganizing a drawer, a room or the whole house there are several principles of good storage to keep in mind.

1. Store near the point of first use -- one simple example, if you purchase 2 cans of cleaner, you can keep one in the kitchen, one in the bathroom. Your kitchen is basically arranged in three areas: - food mixing, sink center and the cook and serve area. In the food mixing area you should have stored dry ingredients and packaged foods above with mixing bowls, sifters, etc. in the cupboard below. Around the sink area you should store dishes, vegetables, pans which are filled with water before using and silverware. The third area is for cooking and serving so it should be close to the dining area. The range, oven and counter space should be near storage for canned goods and serving dishes.

2. Store items at convenient height -- items stored at convenient height are those that require no strain to reach. For most women the easy-reach areas are within 26 to 50 inches from the floor. Heavier items should be placed on shelves so there is no stooping or stretching to reach.

3. Store together things used together -- are the containers, wrappings, and utensils used for packaging foods for the freezer stored together. When possible store similar or like items together.

4. Store articles where easy to see -- do you ever avoid using an item because it is not in full view? A good test of any storage space is to ask "Can I see items in it easily." Step shelves help for small spice boxes. You can make these easily using empty foil boxes. Vertical shelving with dividers help in storing items like baking pans or serving platters so you can see them.

5. Store items where easy to reach -- if items are easy to see, they will probably be easy to reach. Hooks on plywood mounted on the back of a basement workbench make it easy to see, reach and grasp each tool.

6. Build to fit storage needs and to keep storage flexible -- It is important to keep storage flexible. Flexibility is built into each storage area by including adjustable shelving, step shelves, half shelving and vertical files.

The following steps should help you with your storage. If you would like the plans for the half shelving, step shelving, and others mentioned, write to the office at Box 510, Stony Plain. There is also a storage booklet "Improving Home Storage" available for 25¢ at the Home Economics, Regional Office, 620 - 7th Avenue, S. W. Calgary 2. My services are also available if you have home storage problems you would like to discuss. And good luck with the spring cleaning.

LIBRARY NOTES

Are you interested in Unidentified Flying Objects? If so you may like to read "Incident at Exeter". The book is shelved in the adult non-fiction section with the Dewey number 629.13. A staff member will be glad to direct you.

"The Footprints of Elephant Bill" was written by Susan Williams about her husband's life during their stay in Burma. Bill Williams loved elephants and credited them with great intelligence. The Williams stayed in Burma until they were forced out by the Japanese during the Second World War and then they returned to England. The book has several good photographs in black and white.

"Airborne from Edmonton" was written by Eugenie Louise Myles a member of a pioneer family. She had had success as a writer before publishing "Airborne" in 1959. In her book she speaks of the exploits of such well known personalities as "Wop" May, "Punch" Dickens, Stan McMillan Grant McConachie and many others. Don't let the unprepossessing exterior of the book fool you. There is good reading between those covers.

It is a little hard to understand why "Worlds Without End" by N. J. Berrill has not been given a good reception in our library. It was published in 1964 and has been on our shelves since 1965 without receiving any noticable attention. Perhaps the book itself is drab or perhaps the name doesn't give much clue to the content. "Worlds Without End" deals with travel in the universe. Berrill is a well known scientist. True his statement "It will cost thirty billion dollars to land a man on the moon", seems a little out of date. The book is interesting otherwise and we hope it will attract some favourable attention.

The April National Geographic contains articles on Hungary, Orchids - there are 35,000 varieties, the island of Maui - where old Hawaii still lives, The Aran Islands, and an article on the polar bear.

The plastic bags donated by the Lions Club are very much appreciated especially on snowy or muddy days.

Troubled Families Find Help in Al-Anon

The fellowship known as Al-Anon has proved its ability to help those whose lives are troubled by the problem of alcoholism.

Talking with Al-Anon members and exchanging ideas helps a person to learn to apply the experiences of others to his own problems. We find that alcoholism has made us disturbed, too, and that we need emotional sobriety as much as alcoholics need freedom from alcohol. When we examine our own attitudes, we are amazed to see how warped our thinking has become.

When one considers the untold millions who need Al-Anon, we realize the importance of using every legitimate and dignified means of getting the word to them.

Life never will be easy but the Al-Anon program helps us enjoy the warmth and comfort that comes with daily inner serenity.

You cannot buy Al-Anon and you cannot sell it. Its by-product is happiness. When it comes, accept it as a gift and thank God.

SUMMARY

This week's receipts were sharply lower due to muddy farmyards, spring road bans and a short holiday trading week. Trade was active throughout on all classes. Sales were mostly replacement cattle and calves with slaughter classes in short supply. Slaughter prices were fully regained from last week's threatened rail strike losses. Butcher steers and heifers closed a full 1.00 higher. Butcher cows 1.00 - 1.50 higher. Bulls unchanged. Replacement prices 50 - 1.00 higher for feeder steers and heifers.

SLAUGHTER CATTLE AND CALVES

Top quality slaughter steers and heifers opened strong and sold progressively higher as the week advanced. There was a very good demand locally for choice and good quality which were in limited supply. Heavier, medium quality butcher steers sold slow to an unwanted trade as the long weekend approached. There were sales to 33.20 for choice clean handyweight steers as the week closed. Butcher heifers closed at a top of 31.00 for choice handyweights. Butcher cows sold to a strong demand for all grades with a few extra conditioned good kinds 50 cents or more over quotations. Bulls were generally steady with only a few top quality kinds on offer, odd sale to 26.00. Veal firm to 1.00 higher.

REPLACEMENT CATTLE AND CALVES

There was good action this week on feeder steers and heifers with prices mostly 50 - 1.00 higher, especially for good conditioned green feeders. All classes of stock calves sold high in quotations with the odd light weight over quotations.

HELMETED DOG OK AS MOTORCYCLIST

When Knoxville, Tennessee patrolman Mike Gillespie saw a large dog approaching on a motor cycle, he radioed headquarters to find out if the dog was violating the law.

"Does the dog have a helmet on," the desk sergeant asked.

"Yes," patrolman Gillespie said. "He has on a red football helmet with chin strap fastened."

"In that case," the sergeant radioed back, "it's all right."

When the motorcycle passed his patrol car, patrolman Gillespie saw a small man sitting behind the dog and steering the motorcycle.

Tractor Club to Host 4-H Rally

The eleventh regular meeting of the Sixteen A 4-H Tractor Club was held on March 31st at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Bruner of Evansburg.

Zane Bruner gave a report on the council meeting that was held in the Smithfield Hall on March 29th. The club can get the tractor from Camp He-Ho-Ha anytime.

All those who attended the Junior Leadership Workshop and the Public Speaking Workshop in Duffield, filled out questionaires summarizing their views on the workshop.

The Tractor Club is to host the rally between four clubs on May 1st. Everyone is to try and think of a play that we can put in the rally by next meeting.

Members are to try and decide on a new date for the achievemend day, so that Mr. Andrews, the 4-H regional specialist, can attend.

Mr. Keast, the High School Principal of Evansburg is expected to attend the next meeting. He is going to see how the meetings are run so that he can give credits to the ones who are taking the 4-H tractor club program as a special projects course in school.

SUB-MITS
FROM THE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

This week saw the departure of Mrs. Mary Hemmingway (Grade Five) from our staff. Mrs. Hemmingway came here from Vermilion 4 1/2 years ago and opened the first Special Education class here. She took her education in Vermilion and attended the U of A for her teacher's training. Mrs. Hemmingway enjoys all home activities - cooking, sewing, crafts etc. She has been a supervisor for the local W.I. Girl's Club also. The Hemmingway's will make their home in Wainwright where husband Ron is Postmaster. She tells us that her immediate plans in Wainwright do not include teaching.

Now that spring is here appears an opportune time to mention bicycles. Please review bicycle rules with your children. As a checkup, why don't you follow your child some day when he isn't aware of it and see how many safety rules he practises. It is a miracle that there have not been more serious accidents during the rush hour.

Roll up your sleeve to save a life...

DRAGONFLIES

Everyone knows the dragonfly, common on lakeshore, marshes and ponds. The larva are aquatic, passing through several stages before climbing onto reed stalks, etc., where the adult emerges. Size varies from ¾ to 3 inches long. Food, captured by lightning quick twists and turns, consists of small insects, including mosquitos. Some species lay their eggs on the surface of the water, others on reeds, floating vegetation or on the sand or mud bottom. Adults, eggs and larvae are eaten by fish and birds.

Appaloosa Club Reviews Race Rules

The meeting of March 31st was held at the Winterburn Hall with a large number of members in attendance. President Joe Williams introduced and welcomed the new members. We now have approximately 60 members in our club.

Jerry Voytilla reported that the Stallion Service Auction and Horsemanship Clinic will be held on Saturday, April 24th at the Viscount Stables. Services from all breeds will be available. More information may be had by writing or phoning Mr. Voytilla at 10408-132 Avenue, Edmonton, 475-4623.

Members were brought up to date on the progress of the Racing and Show Committees. Rules and regulations for the race meet were read by Jack Williams. A full slate of classes is planned for the two-day show which will be filmed. All exhibitors must belong to a regional club; otherwise they will be charged an additional 50 cent entry fee.

A letter from the Provincial Appaloosa Club was read by Walt Meston; asking our regional club to combine the Provincial Show with our show on August 7th and 8th. This way, as there are now a total of four regional clubs in Alberta, each would be responsible for arranging the Provincial Show once in four years. The President, Racing and Show Committees felt they had progressed too far in their plans to incorporate the Provincial Show. A letter is to be sent to Mrs. Lynn advising the Provincial Club of the decision.

Al McCready explained the short course "The Foundations of Showing" at the University of Alberta. Brochures were available The club decals were completed and available to members. Also Mr. McCready was to meet with the clubs in the Edmonton area with regard to including some Appaloosa classes in their shows.

A letter from the National Club advised a change from physical inspection of stallions to photo inspection for registration. Stallions failing to pass the photo inspection will require the physical inspection.

Dr. Saito of the Leduc Veterinary Clinic will be our guest speaker for the April meeting in Bonnie Doon. Members will be advised of date and place of meeting by postcard. Anyone interested may send their membership (payable to the Northern Alberta Regional Appaloosa Horse Club) to the secretary, Mrs. Edith Voytilla at 10418-132 Avenue, Edmonton. Family membership is $5.00; adult, $2.00; and Junior, (17 yrs. and under)$1.00.

Tickets for the May 7th Banquet and Dance at the Winterburn Hall are available from any club member.

SEEDER PURCHASE UNDER CONSIDERATION

Spring has sprung ! But it's still under 2 feet of snow. However, many producers are still purchasing forage seed and some already checking out seeding equipment. There has been interest expressed in a two group purchase of a Brillion seeder locations in the D.A. district. These producers are attracted by the following features: uniform rate and depth seeding with less seed required per acre, and feel that this specialized machine can be used more fully by a group with less invested per individual. These groups feel that a written agreement is necessary to make this arrangement work, and rightfully so. Individuals must have an understanding beforehand, the rotation system for using the machine, each member's share of operating costs and repairs etc.

If you're willing to operate on this basis and want further information on the Brillion, we can supply it from this office.

Still in connection with forage crops, there are many inquiries about Sanfoin from our beef and dairy men. Some points worth knowing about Sanfoin are: (1) Sanfoin is a perennial legume that does not cause bloat. (2) Sanfoin strains differ widely in forage yield, winterhardiness and other characteristics. Anyone intending to grow it should test it on a small scale to begin with. (3) Sanfoin can be used for hay or pasture. (4) Always inoculate sanfoin seed and do not seed with a companion crop. (5) Seed sanfoin at rates of 20-40 pounds per acre in pure stands and no deeper than 3/4" into a firm seed bed. (6) Row spacings of 24 to 36" are used for seed production and bees must be supplied for pollination. (7) A new superior Canadian variety Melrose has been licensed but seed will not be available for general use until 1972.

Auxiliary Plans Mother's Day Tea

Albert Young's son was in a car accident in which his car was a complete wreck but he was not hurt.

From the Fire Commissioner a latest count of deaths and injuries from fire in Alberta to March 15 misuse of gasoline proves most dangerous followed by a combination of careless smoking while intoxicated.

Out of 18 persons killed and 28 persons injured from fire, misuse of gasoline was involved in 16 cases while cigarettes and intoxication combined in 13 others. None of the deaths and a very small percentage of injuries resulted from poor building construction or equipment failure, instead human error and ignorance predominated. Another anomoly is that home is the scene of most fire deaths and fire injuries although men suffer fire injuries also at work.

Of course, most people succeed in avoiding injuries or death from fire by exercising their knowledge and good judgement and it's only the very very few that don't pay attention to the warning signs.
